Special Risks

Permit Holders are advised of a special risk undertaken by writers of call options who remain uncovered with the approach of an expiration date, proration date, or similar cut-off or deadline date for a tender offer, rights subscription, merger election, or similar event. Equity-option exercise settlement normally occurs 3 business days after the exercise date, and 2 business days after the assignment date. If an option is exercised on or before such cut-off date, the assigned writer may not be notified of the assignment until after that date. Under such circumstances, an uncovered call writer who has an obligation to deliver securities in 2 business days of his assignment date may not be able to fulfill his delivery obligation by effecting a "regular way" purchase of the deliverable securities (3-business-day settlement) or a call option exercise (3-business-day-settlement after exercise). Additionally, a "cash market" (same-day or less-than-3-business-day settlement) may not be available, or may be expensive for buyers. If he fails to make settlement on a timely basis in respect of the assignment, he may be subject to liability under the "liability notice" procedures of a correspondent clearing corporation without necessarily being entitled to comparable protection in connection with his purchase or exercise.

Short Tendering

Questions regarding the Short Tender Rule - SEC Rule 14e-4 can be directed to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Office of Interpretation and Guidance, Division of Trading and Markets, at (202) 551-5777.

Option Adjustment Policy for Tender Offers

Interpretation .03 to Article VI, Section 11A, of OCC's By-Laws states:

> "Adjustments will not be made to reflect a tender offer or exchange offer to the holders of the underlying security whether such offer is made by the issuer of the underlying security or by a third person or whether the offer is for cash, securities or other property. This policy will apply without regard to whether the price of the underlying security may be favorably or adversely affected by the offer or whether the offer may be deemed to be "coercive". Outstanding options ordinarily will be adjusted to reflect a merger, consolidation, or similar event that becomes effective following the completion of a tender offer or exchange offer."

As a result, PLX Technology, Inc. ("PLXT") options will not be adjusted to reflect the expiration of the Offer. A contract adjustment to PLXT options would be contemplated when and if the intended subsequent merger with Integrated Device Technology, Inc. is actually consummated. Until such time, the deliverable for PLXT Options will remain 100 PLX Technology, Inc. Common Shares.
