Most Active Indexes—2004

The following is a description of the index options most actively traded during 2002. Please refer to www.cboe.com for a complete description of each product.

Standard & Poor's 500 Index Options - SPX™

Options are based on the Standard & Poor's 500 Index, which is a capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks from a broad range of industries. The component stocks are weighted according to the total market value of their outstanding shares. The impact of a component's price change is proportional to the issue's total market value, which is the share price times the number of shares outstanding. These are summed for all 500 stocks and divided by a predetermined base value. The base value for the S&P 500 Index is adjusted to reflect changes in capitalization resulting from mergers, acquisitions, stock rights, substitutions, etc. SPX options are available in the three near-term months followed by three additional months from the March quarterly cycle (March, June, September and December) and are European-style exercise (they generally may be exercised only on the last business day before the expiration date). The exercise-settlement value, SET, is calculated using the first (opening) reported sales price in the primary market of each component stock on the last business day before the expiration date. Exercise will result in delivery of cash on the business day following expiration. SPX, which was originally introduced as an American-style option, was reintroduced as a European-style option on April 2, 1986. SPX FLEX and LEAPS (based on 1/10th of the SPX level) and Long-Dated options (SPL) are also traded.

Standard & Poor's 100 Index Options - OEX® & XEO®

Options are based on the Standard & Poor's 100 Index, which is a capitalization-weighted index of 100 stocks from a broad range of industries. The component stocks are weighted according to the total market value of their outstanding shares. The impact of a component's price change is proportional to the issue's total market value, which is the share price times the number of shares outstanding. These are summed for all 100 stocks and divided by a predetermined base value. The base value for the S&P 100 Index is adjusted to reflect changes in capitalization resulting from mergers, acquisitions, stock rights, substitutions, etc. OEX and XEO options are available in the four near-term months plus 1 month from the March cycle. OEX options are American-style exercise (they may be exercised on any business day before the expiration date). XEO options are European-style exercise (they generally may be exercised only on the last business day before the expiration date). The exercise-settlement value, OEX, is calculated using the last (closing) reported sales price in the primary market of each component stock on the last business day before the expiration date or on the day the exercise notice is properly submitted if exercised before expiration. Exercise will result in delivery of cash on the business day following expiration. OEX & XEO FLEX and LEAPS are also traded.

Options on the Dow Jones Industrial AverageSM - DJX

The Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) is a price-weighted index of 30 of the largest, most liquid NYSE & Nasdaq-listed stocks. Options are based on 1/100th of the DJIA level. Options are European-style and are available in three near-term months plus three months on the March quarterly cycle (March, June, September and December). Exercise will result in delivery of cash on the business day following expiration. The exercise-settlement value, DJS, is calculated using the first (opening) reported sales price in the primary market of each component stock on the last business day (usually a Friday) before the expiration date. DJX FLEX and LEAPS (based on 1/100th of the DJIA level) are also traded.

Nasdaq-100 Index® Options - NDX

The Nasdaq-100 Index is a capitalization-weighted index composed of 100 of the largest non-financial securities listed on the Nasdaq Stock MarketSM. The index was created in 1985 with a base value set to 250 on February 1 of that year. After reaching a level of nearly 800 on December 31, 1993, the index level was halved on January 3, 1994. The Nasdaq Stock Market calculates and disseminates NDX every 15 seconds during the trading day. Options are European-style and are available in up to three near-term months plus up to three additional months from the March quarterly cycle (March, June, September and December). Exercise will result in delivery of cash on the business day following expiration. NDX exercise-settlement value, NDS, is calculated based on a volume-weighted average of prices reported in the first five minutes of trading for each of the component securities on the last business day (usually a Friday) before the expiration date. If a stock in the index does not open on the day on which the exercise-settlement value is calculated, the last sales price reported to The Nasdaq Stock Market will be used in calculating the exercise-settlement value. The exercise-settlement amount is equal to the difference between the exercise-settlement value and the exercise price of the option, multiplied by $100. NDX exercise-settlement calculation changed on April 22, 1996. NDX FLEX are available.

CBOE Mini Nasdaq-100 Index® Options - MNX

The CBOE Mini-NDX Index is based on 1/10th the value of the Nasdaq-100 Index® (NDX). NDX is a modified capitalization-weighted index composed of 100 of the largest non-financial securities listed on the Nasdaq Stock Market. The index was created in 1985 with a base value set to 250 on February 1 of that year. After reaching a level of nearly 800 on December 31, 1993, the index level was halved on January 3, 1994. MNX is available in up to three near-term months plus up to three additional months from the March quarterly cycle (March, June, September and December) and are European-style options (they generally may be exercised only on the last business day before the expiration date). Trading will ordinarily cease on the business day (usually a Thursday) preceding the day on which the exercise-settlement value is calculated. The exercise-settlement value for MNX options, XMS, is computed by dividing the NDX settlement value, NDS, by a factor of 10.

INTEREST RATE OPTIONS-2004

In 2004, the Chicago Board Options Exchange traded options on four interest rate measures—IRX, FVX, TNX and TYX. IRX is based on 10 times the discount rate of the most recently auctioned 13-week U.S. Treasury Bill. FVX, TNX and TYX are based on 10 times the yield-to-maturity on the most recently auctioned 5-year Treasury note, 10-year Treasury note and 30-year Treasury bond, respectively.
